EDITOR'S LETTER

To the Doorman at Premier Headquarters

Regarding the horse on your steps, and the man who let it in.

To the doorman at Premier Headquarters: we are sorry about the steps. On Thursday a crowd from downstairs came up your red carpet with a horse, a baby and a list of demands. You kept the door shut. You should know the list was written upstairs, by a man who lives in the building and is now in last place in it.

Here is who else came through your lobby. The Bush went to bed and woke up 9-0, the first team marked safe from relegation. Peens Bound n Down made three trades, went to sleep, and beat a man who stayed up to watch the Bills kneel three times. Boom lost to the Bush, won another man's team name, and asked the league's bot to say he was better than his record. Otter came on the pod and moved that everybody give The Guy Next Door a dollar. The Guy Next Door loved that part.

Please keep the door locked. They have promised to come back with a robot.

Yours, from the bottom step, the Straw

The Peens Are Coming

The Champeens want three seats upstairs. They have a horse, a baby, and a list of demands. The list was written inside the palace.

They came up the red carpet on a Thursday: a man on a horse, a man in a poncho waving trade offers, a man in a blue wig, and a baby. The doorman did not know where to look.

They wanted seats in the Premier. They started at four. Boom heard the number and threw up twice, so the army came down to three and called it mercy.

Then a window opened on the top floor. The Guy Next Door leaned out. He owns a team up there. It is 2-7, it is named Shineys Smacker this week, and he is not taking questions about that. He looked at the horse for a long time. Then he wrote the army its demands and dropped them out the window.

Otter caught the paper in his wig and gave the speech. “People are buying emotions.” He wanted nothing for himself, he said. “It’s absolutely not because I’m in the peens and want to make it into the premier, although, of course, I do.” Then he sat down on the palace steps. “i’m here for the popcorn guys”.

Inside, the commissioner watched through the mail slot and typed a memo. “if the Premier League is Harvard, then the Peens League is, let’s say, I don’t know, Chase, Texas A&M”. “Texas A&M is just easier to get into.”

NO GOLD, ALL GLORY · 162.68 · WEEK HIGH · 6-3

This Is Where I Carried You

The new guy does not have a second running back. Monday morning he told the league who has been doing the walking.

No Gold, All Glory is the new guy, and Sunday the new guy beat Backdoor Heat 162.68 to 144.8, the most anybody scored in either flight. Backdoor Heat's two running backs scored 56.7. His scored 14.7. One of them caught five passes and ended up five yards behind where he began. The league met Monday morning to talk it over.

Footprints

THE FANTASY EDITION

One night I dreamed I walked the beach with my lineup.
In the sand were two lines of footprints.
One was my running backs. One was my wide receivers.

Thursday the running backs were still with me.
Chris Rodriguez ran 10 times for 19 yards and fell into the end zone at the very end.

"O thank god"

Then came Sunday, the hardest part of the week.
Ashton Jeanty ran 6 times, caught 5 passes for –5 yards,
and a voice called down the beach:

"I think we are all happy you don't have an actual RB2"

"I looked back and there was only one line of RB footprints in the sand, and my WRs said, this is where I carried you..."

Amon-Ra St. Brown carried me 86 yards.	12.6
Christian Watson carried me 171 and scored.	27.6
CeeDee Lamb carried me 195 and scored.	29.5

The commissioner read the whole thing under the new name tag. "I thought "Shineys Smacker" was Thomas for that whole rant". Amburgers: "Omg I did too".

The plan for the Hineys, Week 10. "Take a spray paint can, right? Uh-huh."

This week only. Not Thomas.

Everybody Owes Him a Dollar

Otter thought of a new tax while washing dishes. Everybody pays a dollar. One man gets all of it.

The idea came to Otter at the sink, with a plate in his hand. He brought it in still wet. “what if everybody in the league lost a draft dollar and the MVP got all of those additional draft dollars?” It was a thank-you, he said. “you have enhanced our experience. Here’s a buck.” Amburgers counted the pile out loud. “That’s a lot of draft dollars.”

The commissioner pictured one man “rolling in with just so much money into the draft” and reached for the brake. Say a guy “starts posting a ton” just to win the thing. “you start to question their intentions”. The Guy Next Door, 2-7 and last in the Premier, has nothing but intentions.

BOOM BAUM 85.24 · TEXAS TORNADO'S BUSH 109.28 · FIRST TEAM IN

The Bush Was Not Trimmed

Saturday night Boom Baum said he was coming over with the clippers. Sunday the Bush got bigger. It is 9-0 with the first playoff spot in the Premier, and the bill went out anyway.

Boom has been this Bush's yard man all year, and all year the Bush has grown. Once already this year he dropped off Trey McBride and three more plants and drove home with less. Sunday night the Bush asked the league's bot to grade that job. "BUSH vs BOOM / Actual starter points: 171.5-60.9, Bush." The bot tried to be kind. "A complete fleece isn't established."

So Saturday night he sharpened the blades. Sunday he sent in Tee Higgins, who cut 17.7, and Ladd McConkey, who grabbed his back and cut nothing. The Bush stood at the window in a robe, wide awake and mad about it, with Ja'Marr Chase for 27.5.

Boom's sketch of the job site. Not to scale.

Thomas Lost to a Team That Did Not Exist

Last week Thomas started three zeros and won by 27.84, while Adonai Mitchell scored 24.7 on his bench. So this week Mitchell got the start. He scored 0.0. Thomas lost to the Shiny Hineys, 88.64 to 81.36, the low score upstairs, to a team that got 0.5 from Josh Jacobs.

Then the Hineys lost their name to Boom, and the book was changed to match. It now says Thomas lost Week 9 to I Shine Boom's Balls, a team that was not born yet.

THE KNOCKOUT · MAGNIFICENT HINEY, CHOPPED

Michael's Magnificent Hiney, the Hineys' duo, finished fourth of four at 101.86 and went out on the curb. Meaty Balls, the Jigba's team, had the top score for the third week running: 151.02, 167.58, and now this. Glory Burgers, broke, came by before five in the morning and carried off George Kittle, Kyren Williams and Justin Jefferson for nothing.
